

Problem Statement – Jake Adelman

College students often struggle to find affordable and healthy meals on campus because dining hall options are limited and off-campus restaurants are expensive. Many students have busy schedules and lack the time to prepare meals themselves. This problem affects students' physical health, academic focus, and budgets. A practical solution would make nutritious, low-cost food easily accessible to all students on or near college campuses.